2017 REPORT TO THE 2018 COMMUNITY
These days, everyone’s talking about affordable housing. Some are calling it a crisis. We’ve all seen the makeshift camps along our roadside. At Habitat for Humanity, it’s old news. This year marks our 30th year working with you to address substandard housing and homelessness. Together, we’ve been chipping away at the issue, slowly but surely making progress. I’m proud to report our recent accomplishments.

Over the last two years, 18 new families have purchased Habitat homes. Twenty of 24 homes are now occupied at our Allen Estates neighborhood. The first six homes are now underway at Denney Gardens, our newest community. Looking forward, we’re set to begin the street and infrastructure at our next site in Hillsboro.

We also did home repairs for 33 families over the past two years. These low-income homeowners are mostly seniors and people with disabilities struggling to care for their homes. About 35 percent are veterans.

Overall, we’ve helped to stabilize housing for 51 families, including over 60 children.

Our financial position remains solid, thanks to you. We remain debt free, and fully 90 cents of every donation go towards our programs. GuideStar gives us their coveted Platinum rating and the Better Business Bureau gives us two thumbs up.

Despite our momentum, challenges remain. First, Habitat homes cost about 45 percent more to build today than they did back in 2013. Lumber costs alone are up 30 percent due to higher demand and new trade tariffs. Competition for your donations is fierce, and the impact of the new tax law on charitable giving remains unclear. Finally, the growing need is heartbreaking, and it’s no surprise why. Rent for a 2-bedroom apartment in Washington County now exceeds $1,300 per month. Last year, over 100 families applied to our program. We were able to accept only eight.

But we are having an impact. Our community is more engaged than ever, partnering with us to build and improve homes. Our homeowners are engaged, working alongside us, taking financial literacy training and helping to build their homes so they can achieve the strength, stability and independence they need to build a better life for themselves and their families.

And, you are engaged. Your financial support, your voice and your time makes our success possible. Thank you.

Let The Celebration Begin

Dedication day includes gathering homeowners and supporters for great ethnic food cooked by families, painting street murals, kids crafts & games, and face painting. Even the fire department got in on the excitement.
Two years ago, we launched our home preservation program to help vulnerable people safely stay in their homes as long as they can. Some of this home repair work includes painting, landscaping, aging-in-place updates for seniors and people with disabilities, plus minor and major interior and exterior repair services. Program participants contribute volunteer sweat equity and help offset our costs on terms they can afford.

Carol (above) and her veteran husband, John, spoke at our May 2018 fundraiser. “It’s a helpless feeling when you realize you can no longer take care of your home,” said Carol. “Your house is life. It keeps you warm, and dry, and safe. Seeing it fall apart causes you to lose hope. I stopped putting up holiday decorations, something I had always taken great joy in doing. I thought, ‘Why bother?’”

“Now, we are confident we can safely stay in our home for as many years as the good Lord allows.”

“I can tell you Habitat’s home preservation program is a godsend. They’re changing lives for folks like us every day.”

~repair program partner

Carol applied to our home preservation program and soon Habitat volunteers and contractors descended on their 90-year old home. They replaced Carol & John’s roof and siding, fixed the gutters, and installed safety railings on the front and back porches.

“It still seems like a dream,” said Carol. “John and I can hardly believe our good fortune. Habitat has changed our lives. It’s given us the boost we needed, all the while treating us as partners – with dignity and respect. Now, we are confident we can stay in our home for as many years as the good Lord allows.”

A Tale of Two Families

Habitat assures affordable homeownership today and tomorrow

TAM & DAI

Before finding Habitat, Tam and Dai were a young couple with a 2-year-old living in a house with five different families – sixteen people sharing one kitchen and two bathrooms.

TIME FOR HABITAT

In 2012, Tam and Dai completed Habitat’s sweat equity program and moved into a 2-bedroom, 1,200 sq. ft. home in Hillsboro. As life stabilized, the young family grew. The couple welcomed two more children, and Tam’s mother moved in to help with childcare. By 2018, the family had clearly outgrown their 2-bedroom home.

Tam and Dai asked if Habitat would buy back their house and “recycle” it to another deserving family. We happily agreed.

WEALTH GENERATION THROUGH HOMEOWNERSHIP

After five years of steady no-interest Habitat mortgage payments, the family had built a very healthy credit score and accumulated considerable equity. They found they could purchase a larger, market-rate home and qualify for a conventional mortgage.

VILMA

Vilma (pictured lower left), who is single and works two jobs, just celebrated her 60th birthday by purchasing Tam & Dai’s house.

REJECTED

Before Habitat, Vilma’s rent was $860 per month, fully 38 percent of her monthly income – well above what’s considered affordable. She applied to Habitat last year, but her application was declined. Due to limited resources, Habitat accepts just 1 in 5 qualified families each year. Other applicants had greater need than Vilma.

ACCEPTED!!

After learning that Tam and Dai’s 2-bedroom home would soon become available, Habitat reviewed its current roster of partner families. Happily for Vilma, none would fit in a 2-bedroom house.

Vilma’s application was revisited and approved. She quickly completed her sweat equity and financial literacy classes, and purchased Tam and Dai’s home last month. Her Habitat house payment is $210 less than her old rent payment.

HOPE FOR THE FUTURE

Vilma always assumed she would never retire – not if she wanted to keep a roof over her head. No matter how many hours she worked, rising rents made saving for retirement impossible. Now, with stable affordable housing comes hope. Thanks to Habitat, Vilma has the peace of mind knowing she will never be priced out of her home.

Tam and Dai purchased their Habitat home in 2012.
Each Habitat partner family performs 500 hours of volunteer “sweat equity” labor before purchasing their home. Classes on home safety, maintenance, and financial literacy are also required. Most hours are invested building their home, and the homes of other partner families. Many also volunteer at the Habitat ReStore, speak at our events, and meet with donors.

Even children can earn sweat equity hours, helping with community projects and getting good grades in school. Each “A” earns four sweat equity hours!
Everyone can be a volunteer!

New volunteer coordinator Kayla Gayaldo, 23, wanted to get more young people involved with Willamette West Habitat. However, safety guidelines severely limit what those under 18 can do at our construction sites. So, Kayla had to get creative.

Enter April VanWinkle from the Independent Skills Center (ISC) at Beaverton’s Mountainside High School. April was looking for volunteer opportunities for her students. “The ISC program serves high schoolers who are significantly impacted by cognitive, physical or medical disabilities,” April shared. “We have a beautifully vibrant and enthusiastic group of students who greatly enjoy connecting with others and engaging in the community around them.”

“Typically, my students are seen as the ones in society who need to be ‘helped’. I wanted to turn that idea on its head and allow my students to have an opportunity to participate in their community in a way that they were the ones giving the help,” said April. “This is an incredibly rare experience for kids and adults with disabilities. It takes a lot of creativity and collaboration with nonprofits like Willamette West Habitat to find ways that their unique strengths and abilities can contribute to the needs of the community.”

Kayla found the perfect project: snack bags for Habitat construction volunteers. April. “This is an incredibly rare experience for kids and adults with disabilities. It takes a lot of creativity and collaboration with nonprofits like Willamette West Habitat to find ways that their unique strengths and abilities can contribute to the needs of the community.”

Kayla supplied the kids with paper bags and snack items. The kids drew pictures and words of thanks on the bags, and then filled them with afternoon snacks.

Several other youth groups, like those at McKinney Elementary pictured below, and local Cub Scout packs, are also having fun making volunteer snack bags.

“Making snack bags for the Habitat volunteers was an awesome way for my students to get involved and was also a lot of fun for them,” said April. “They continue to ask me to have Kayla back so they can volunteer some more!”

If you have a youth group interested in creative projects, please contact Kayla at (503) 844-7606 ext. 113.

You did it!

The Habitat ReStore just had its best month ever, thanks to the thousands of shoppers and donors who dropped off gently used furniture, appliances, home accessories, building materials and more. In fact, during fiscal year 2017, four greater Portland/Vancouver area ReStores together contributed over $750,000 to Habitat’s mission.

Did you know that Restore now has great deals on Electrolux brand “Scratch-n-Dent” appliances? These new fridges, freezers, ovens, washers/dryers have flaws or imperfections to their exterior surface that don’t affect their operational capabilities and come with a 1-year manufacturer’s warranty.

If it’s a remodel you have planned, contact ReStore’s Salvage Service. They’ll gently remove cabinets, appliances, windows, doors, etc., leaving your space ready for your new look. You will receive a tax deductible donation receipt while your old items are resold to help build more Habitat homes.

Did you know the ReStore is powered by volunteers? Last year, 2,448 volunteers clocked 61,150 hours processing, sorting, organizing and selling over 60,000 donated items. To join our team, go to pdxrestore.org/volunteer.

When you donate to Habitat ReStore, you help build strength, stability, self-reliance and shelter in local communities and around the world.

Denney Gardens in Beaverton is 1.3 acres located adjacent to Fanno Creek. When finished, it will be home to 16 families at a cost of $2.4 million. The property includes a sizeable wetlands habitat. Deer, beaver and numerous bird species also consider Denney Gardens their home.

Our Denney Gardens neighborhood model was made by our Bank of America Student Leader summer interns Kelly & Gabe.

The gift was the best kind, unexpected.

Irvin Huntting grew up with younger siblings Bill and Patti in a house on Lake Oswego. In his youth, Irvin loved the water, prompting him to join the Sea Scouts, a division of Boy Scouts, and later the Navy. After leaving the Navy, Irvin settled his family in California but eventually found his way back to Oregon near Bill and Patti. One day, Bill mentioned a charity he and Patti held dear: Willamette West Habitat. In fact, Bill, his wife, Becky, and sister Patti, together have funded nine Habitat homes and even have a namesake neighborhood, Huntting Park.

The Huntting’s believe each Habitat community benefits from having a children’s play area, and Bill mentioned this to Irvin. Years earlier, Irvin funded a playground at the church he attended in California. He loved seeing the children laughing and playing and thought it would be nice to bring that same joy to Habitat kids.

Irvin set up a donor advised fund at the Oregon Community Foundation, then made a $200,000 gift to Willamette West Habitat for playgrounds.

Receiving the surprise gift made for a very fun day at the Habitat office. A local playground company was engaged, and plans were made for six new playgrounds. The first two were installed last year in our two oldest neighborhoods. This year, our newest community, Allen Estates, will receive two playgrounds, each designed for different age groups. Playgrounds are also planned for future communities Denney Gardens and King City.

Overall, 85 families will benefit from the kindness of a man they never knew. Sadly, Irvin passed away last May at age 86, but his legacy will live on in the laughter of the children.
